GOP FIGHT GROWING BITTER

Don't Make Fourth Of July Holiday A Horror Day, Traffic Chief Pleads

COLUMBUS, July 3 — Col. George Mingle, superintendent of the Ohio's State Highway Patrol, has asked Ohio motorists not to turn the Fourth of July holiday "into a horror day."

He predicted more cars will be on the road this weekend than during the Memorial Day weekend. Ohio led the nation with 22 traffic deaths over that weekend. Another 315 persons were injured in 378 traffic mishaps.

Col. Mingle said the patrol will be at full strength to enforce traffic rules and regulations during the holiday period. He said radar will be used to spot speeders.

Americans will take to the highways 90 million strong over the Fourth of July weekend—and at least 430 of them will die in accidents, the National Safety Council estimates.

The council said some 40 million passenger vehicles will clog the nation's streets and highways during the three-day weekend.

These vehicles will travel five billion miles, or enough to circle the world 200,000 times, the council added.

"More cars on the road traveling more miles will inevitably mean more accidents — unless there is more caution than usual on the part of the motoring public," the council said.

The official estimate of 430 traffic deaths to occur from 6 p. m. Thursday through midnight Sunday can be kept lower if motorists are extra careful, it stated.

Fair weather and more normal temperatures throughout the nation were predicted for Thursday with a hot and humid Fourth of July weekend in the making.

The Central Plains states, a drought and heat wave broken by Wednesday's rain and wind storms, breathed easier under a forecast of warm but lower temperatures.

The downpours that drenched Missouri and Kansas dropped readings as much as 35 degrees.

St. Louis, with 84 deaths blamed on the heat in a month—17 within the last two days—felt the impact of 100-mile-an-hour winds. In Pekin, Ill., the thermometer reading dropped from 100 to 70 degrees.

Chicago's hot spell was expected to be tempered Thursday by thunderstorms and fairly strong winds. The city's high Wednesday of 97.8 was equalled on that date only in 1911.

The nation's hot spots included 108 at Blythe, Calif., and 107 at Presidio, Tex. It was a cool 36 in Butte, Mont.

Showers and thunderstorms were forecast Thursday from the Great Lakes area to the Gulf of Mexico, embracing the Mississippi Valley, and spreading eastward to Florida.

In Kentucky, however, where 15 heat deaths were reported up to Wednesday, a 96 high was predicted. Mid-90 readings also were expected in Ohio, Tennessee and Southern Michigan.

Here are forecasts for neighboring states:

INDIANA — Occasional thunderstorms Thursday night and Friday. Warmer and humid. Cooler Friday evening with night low of 60 in north, 75 in south.

KENTUCKY — Some cloudiness with high 92-96 and chance of scattered thundershowers west and central portions Thursday.

Scattered thundershowers Thursday night east and north portions and Friday morning. Not as warm Friday. Low 70-75.

WEST VIRGINIA — Partly cloudy and warm with a few widely scattered thundershowers Thursday and Thursday night. Thunderstorms Friday followed by cooler.

Low Thursday night 68-74. Increasing cloudiness, warm and more humid with widely scattered thundershowers likely Thursday night. Friday thundershowers followed by cooler. Low Thursday night 66-72.

PENNSYLVANIA — Increasing cloudiness, warm and more humid with widely scattered thundershowers likely Thursday afternoon or night. Friday thundershowers followed by cooler. Low Thursday night 66-72.

Congress Seeks To Wind Up Job

Saturday Adjournment Predicted By Leaders; Many Bills Remain

WASHINGTON, July 3 — Congress resumed its pell-mell rush toward adjournment Thursday with hundreds of bills yet to be acted, but leaders are confident the wind-up can come by Saturday.

The Senate met at its earliest hour of the 1952 session, 8:30 a. m., to start grinding through a calendar of more than 300 measures. Most of them are minor private relief bills. Less than a dozen major measures remain.

The House, with a far lighter remaining work load, came in at the customary hour, 11 a. m.

Some Republican senators, eager to leave for Chicago, where their party's national presidential convention begins Monday, urged a big push for adjournment by not later than Friday night, but Senate Majority Leader McFarland (D-Ariz.) said he thought Saturday afternoon or night more likely.

Six of the 11 money bills carrying funds to operate the government in the new fiscal year, which began Tuesday, have yet to be passed.

Committee worked almost until midnight Wednesday getting it ready for the floor.

Senators on the committee said the group voted $6,031,000,000 for foreign aid, the exact amount approved by the House, after defeating a move for a $1 billion cut.

Three other money bills in conference are — State-Commerce-Justice, legislative, and civil functions, which covers river, harbor and flood control projects.

A compromise Interior bill providing money for many reclamation projects is ready for vote.

Other key measures on the must list are bills to hike social security insurance and public assistance payments, set up a GI Bill of Rights to benefit Korean War veterans and extend the President's war powers.

The lawmakers sent a steady stream of measures to President Truman in the usual closing-week tempo of a congressional session.

AMONG THESE were these four money bills:

$6,272,000,000 to run government agencies including the White House, Atomic Energy Commission, Veterans Administration and Tennessee Valley Authority.

$1,787,000,000 for the Labor Department and federal security agencies.

$728,000,000 for the Agriculture Department and the government farm programs.

$133,696,000 to operate the District of Columbia. Of this, 11 million comes from the federal government and the rest from district taxation.

Also whipped through final passage were bills to:

Make effective state "fair trade" laws authorizing fixing of minimum retail prices on branded merchandise.

Broaden federal powers to close unsafe mines.

Revise the law governing the licensing of radio and television stations. Dropped were provisions to protect the stations against libel suits arising from political broadcasts.

Overhaul the armed forces reserves system and guarantee against the recall of Korean veterans in a future emergency as long as other reservists are available.

Hometown Honors Top U.S. War Ace

OIL CITY, Pa., July 3 — Col. Francis S. Gabreski, who braved death hundreds of times in air battles over Europe and Korea, knelt in prayer Thursday with many friends giving thanks for his safe return.

The veteran combat pilot, who bagged 31 German planes in World War II and 6½ Communist MIGs in Korea, joined his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Gabreski, Tuesday after nearly two years in Korea. Oil City began the celebration of the return of America's greatest living combat flier on a solemn note with mass in the Catholic church Gabreski attended as a boy.

Darn Infernal Women Irk Ohio Man

CHESAPEAKE, July 3 — Norman Parker figures he has as much right to show his legs as women have. So he's been wearing shorts—day in and day out—since 1935.

The shorts are a protest, says the 45-year-old Parker, against "those darn infernal women who show their legs."

The tall, raw-boned non-conformist lives in the hills back of this Ohio River village with his 78-year-old mother in a weather-beaten frame house.

People in the hill country around Lawrence County have long been accustomed to Parker—and the shorts. A cold "spell" finds him donning an overcoat, gloves and a hat. But underneath it all, just the shorts.

Parker, who says he hasn't done a lick of work since he started wearing shorts, tells of the time the town marshal hauled him off to jail.

"I was cooped up for 108 hours," he recalls. "They had two doctors packin' on my knees and openin' my eyelids to see if I was nuts."

Then there was the time he went to an open-air church meeting.

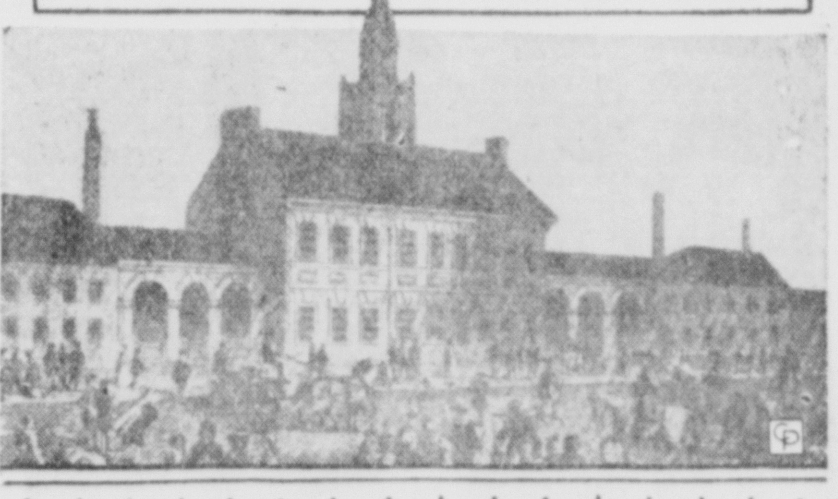

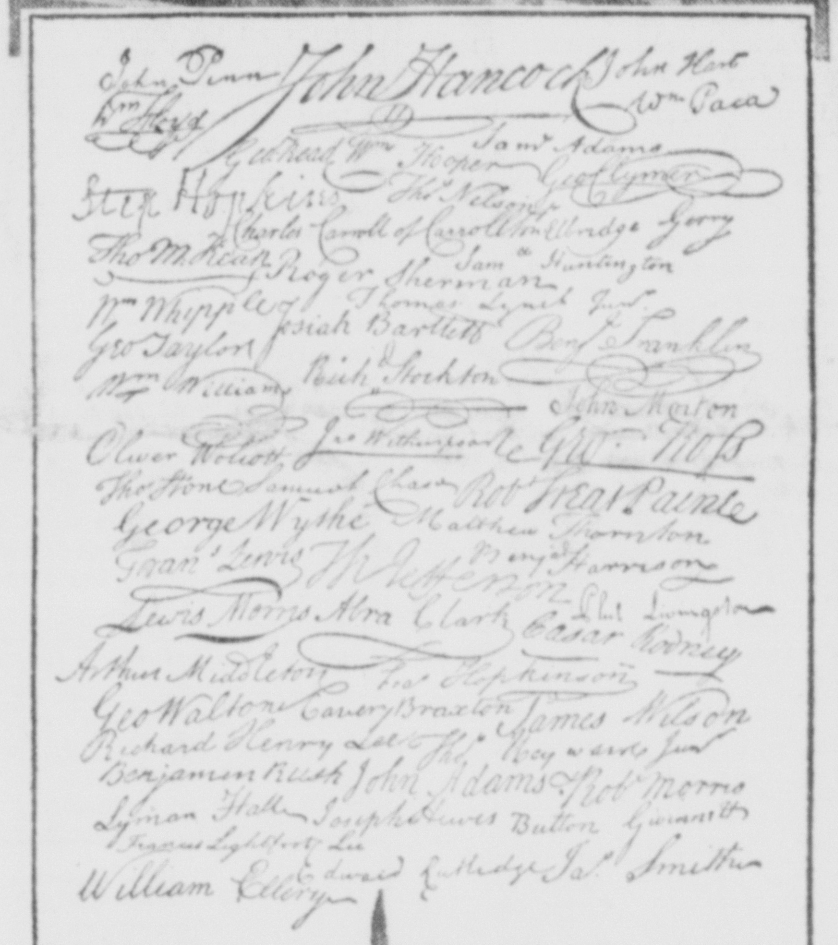

"Three deacons told me to get off the church property, for it belonged to them, not to God. So I had to quit going to church and I haven't been to one since."

But Parker says, "If it wasn't for the strength I get from God, I wouldn't have lasted 17 days, much less 17 years. I've been cussed, threatened, beaten and called everything but a man."

His main hobby—roaming the hills for game and fish—takes care of some of the food problems at home. Three other sons help their mother.

When he isn't hunting or fishing, he goes calling on "friends who don't laugh." Parker says he may give up wearing shorts when the women do, but—"don't look like they're going to, so I ain't neither."

Circleville To Forget Routine, Take It Easy Over Fourth

Aside from law enforcement and public safety units, and a store or two here and there, it looks as though Circleville is going to forget routine business for a quiet, easy 4th of July.

Most of the activity scheduled for the area will be of the entertainment and sports variety. For their official observance of Independence Day, many Circleville residents will take in the gala, day long program scheduled in Ashville.

A long list of events ranging from a fish fry to fireworks is on tap at that community, but most of the attraction for out-of-towners will probably be centered on the traditional morning parade. It starts at 11 a. m.

At Pickaway County fairgrounds, nearly 50 cars are expected to compete in a big holiday show for the stock car racing fans. A special 50-lap contest will be a highlight.

THE DAY'S program will start with time trials around noon, with

Louisiana Group Brews New Fight

Eisenhower Faction Hopping Mad As Taft Maintains Top Control

CHICAGO, July 3 — A bitter fight between Taft and Eisenhower forces for 13 Louisiana delegates exploded Thursday before the Republican National Committee.

With Sen. Robert A. Taft's supporters solidly in control, the Eisenhower faction just about abandoned in advance any hope of getting a committee vote in favor of seating its delegates in next week's nominating convention.

But they opened a slashing attack, anyway, on Taft faction tactics in Texas, Georgia and other states in addition to Louisiana.

And they declared they would try again in the convention itself to get the challenged Taft delegates thrown out and the general's supporters seated in their place. They contend there'll be a marked swing in sentiment toward their candidate once rank-and-file delegates start streaming into Chicago.

THE ANGER generated in two previous days of hearings in the convention head quarters hotel burst out at Thursday's session even before the Louisiana dispute came up.

Werner W. Schroeder, national committeeman from Illinois, stood up and took scorching exception to a charge by Eisenhower's campaign manager, Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., that the committee's award of Georgia's 17 delegates to Taft Wednesday was a steal.

Schroeder was one of the 62 committee members who voted to seat the pro-Taft faction — the Eisenhower group mustered 39 votes — and he told the committee his vote Wednesday was cast for the same group.

With reference to the family connections of the Massachusetts senator, Schroeder quoted the well-known lines about:

"The land of the bean and the pod,
"Where the Lowells speak only to the Cabots,
"And the Cabots speak only to God."

Schroeder said that perhaps the next time Lodge is in contact with the deity he will try to find out "Was I thief all three times I voted for his Georgia delegation or only on this last occasion."

Then the Louisiana fight started.

EISENHOWER backers challenged 13 of the 15 pro-Taft delegates from Louisiana, charged they were picked by "phony" tactics, declared the delegates were stolen from them just as the like people say they were robbed by the Tafts in Texas.

Taft forces countered with a nine-inch-high pile of blue-bound documents intended to show their delegates were honestly elected according to the rules.

They wanted to limit the argument to six delegates since seven other contests have been referred back to the Taft-run state committee. But the Eisenhower forces fought to put all 13 challenged delegates into contest.

Taft unquestionably held the whip hand in the current maneuverings before the national committee but the Eisenhower supporters insisted it would be a different story in a few days.

Eisenhower himself set the pitch. Before leaving Denver on a speech-making train trip to this convention city—he's due in Saturday — the general declared he would "roar out clear across the country" for clean and decent conduct of next week's convention.

Eisenhower said he is going to make a fight "to keep our party clean and fit to lead our nation."

In a farewell talk in Denver off the rear platform of his special train, the general said:

"I'M GOING to Chicago—as a soldier in the ranks—to have a hand in that fight. I'm going to say that our party cannot go before the public and ask for its votes unless it comes into court with clean hands."

Taft and his backers denied any chicanery past or future.

Whatever the opposition might charge or whatever might happen to change the situation next week, they were in charge of the pre-convention maneuverings Thursday.

The 106-member national committee was called into session to iron out the latest—but not the last Taft vs. Eisenhower fight to come before it. That was the sizzling fight for votes in the 15-member Louisiana delegation.

Votes are what it takes—604, to be exact—to win the nomination.

And the latest Associated Press checkup, based on avowed and conceded delegates and those seated by the national committee, gave Taft a 492 to 412 edge over Eisenhower at the end of Wednesday's tug-of-war.

Eisenhower's forces loudly and repeatedly declared their determination to carry to the convention's Credentials Committee and to the convention floor the fights for delegates they lost before the national committee.

In the final analysis, it's the convention itself which can rule on (Continued on Page Two)

Officer Smith Bound For Grand Jury

Held On $500 Bond As Result Of Row Over Arrest Here

Circleville Policeman Charles Smith, of 207½ West Main street, was bound over to the grand jury Thursday on an accusation of assault and battery after a hearing in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root. The officer pleaded innocent.

The action resulted from an altercation last Saturday night when Smith arrested Hiram Ellis Johnson on a charge of intoxication.

Johnson, who filed the accusation, claimed he suffered cuts on the head and rib injuries at the time of the arrest.

He was fined $35 and costs and committed to Pickaway County jail when he failed to make payment. Later he was treated for injuries at Berger hospital.

SMITH, WHO waived reading of the affidavit at Thursday's hearing, was ordered held on $500 bond.

He was temporarily turned over to the Pickaway County sheriff's office pending payment of the bond.

Also as aftermath of the Saturday night disturbance, Smith was to be suspended for 15 days effective Thursday by Safety Director C. O. Leist.

Millersport Sees Railroad Mishap

MILLERSPORT, July 3 — Nine cars and two diesel locomotives of an 85-car freight train were derailed in this Fairfield County village Wednesday night when the train plowed through an open switch into four other freight cars on a siding.

James Seale, 63, New York Central conductor from Bucyrus who was riding in the caboose, was injured slightly. The crash sent the cars on the siding down a 60-foot embankment into the Ohio Canal.

GOP Governors Irk Taftites

Convention Delegate Dispute Stand Aired

CHICAGO, July 3.—Sen. Robert A. Taft's top campaign command disagree sharply with a statement from 23 Republican governors on a critical convention issue.

Two of them said they believe the governors were unaware of the implications of the manifesto. Another said Senator Taft was "dumbfounded" when he heard of the statement.

The governors signed a statement in Houston, Tex., Wednesday urging Republican National Convention officials to bar contested state delegations from voting on any other delegate disputes.

Tom Coleman, floor manager for Taft, snapped: "The governors ought to read up on parliamentary procedure."

And David Ingalls, campaign manager for the senator, commented that "either they didn't think it through, or else they just don't understand what this means. You couldn't have a convention under such a rule."

ONE OF THE signers of the statement, Gov. J. Bracken Lee of Utah, is a Taft backer. Another, Gov. Earl Warren of California, is himself a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination.

Taft's position has been that a disputed delegation should be permitted to vote on every contest except its own. That is, neither of the rival Texas delegations might have a voice in the Texas dispute—but the one temporarily seated might vote on contests involving opposing claims of delegations in other states.

Ingalls said that, otherwise, "there could be a phony claim filed in each of the 48 states, and nobody would be able to rule on any of the claims."

The Eisenhower leaders have taken the same position that the governors endorsed.

The governors telegraphed their statement to Guy G. Gabrielson, chairman of the Republican National Committee, which is now hearing the disputes.

The governors' telegram said in part: "We believe that if the contested delegations are permitted to vote on the seating of other contested state delegations, the Republican Party — no matter who may become the nominee—would enter a vital and difficult campaign under a serious moral cloud."

Solons Fail To Halt Use Of 37th

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(AP)—Ohio's GOP congressmen joined in a direct frontal attack against top Army brass here Wednesday, but failed to block the move to send units of Ohio's 37th Infantry Division to Korea.

Republicans met resistance in their encounter with Maj. Gen. Myles Reber. The lawmakers rallied after the Army informed it would draw replacements from the 37th Division between Aug. 1 and Nov. 1 to fill personnel gaps in Korea and other foreign posts.

8 Persons Killed In Crash Of Bus

WINNIPEG, July 3.—Eight persons were killed and 20 others injured Thursday when a Winnipeg-bound Greyhound bus crashed into the rear of a semi-trailer transport truck about 14 miles south of here.

The impact sheared off the right front side of the bus, opening the metal body like a tin can. Passengers in the first half-dozen rows of seats in the bus took the brunt of the terrific impact. Several of them were thrown onto the highway, including the body of a dead child.

Louisiana Group Fights

which of two more groups of would-be delegates shall be seated.

For all the conflict between its two top contenders the GOP seemed to be getting somewhere in writing a platform for the winner to run on.

Sen. Eugene Millikin of Colorado, chairman of the Resolutions Committee, said there will be agreement on a blistering criticism of Truman and Roosevelt policies.

The Ohio senator himself, leaving on a short trip to Washington, arranged a meeting Thursday morning with Pennsylvania's Republican Gov. John S. Fine—firmly uncommitted to anyone so far, though he may back Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the first ballot.

Fine blew into town Wednesday. He has influence with Keystone State delegates—he's said to have somewhere between 11 and 21 willing to follow him. That's one of the biggest blocs still uncommitted.

Taft's first ballot victory talk drew a scoffing rejoinder from a leading Eisenhower backer, New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Dewey, here to help the Eisenhower forces, saw a marked movement toward the general. He stood by his own prediction of what will happen—40 delegates from various parts of the country will switch from Taft to Eisenhower after the first ballot.

DEWEY USED strong words in assailing Taft's campaign. "Russian dictatorship," for example. And "steamproller convention."

Moreover, said Dewey, practically everybody in Texas feels just as he does about it.

Texas was bound to get into the discussion. The national committee has to choose between two would-be 38-vote delegations and it looks now as if the fireworks before the committee would come, appropriately enough, on the Fourth of July.

The pro-Eisenhower contingent contends all the Texas Taft delegates were stolen. The Taft forces say no such thing happened—that all they did was enforce the law to keep Democrats from voting on Republican affairs.

Tempests flared Wednesday as the Taft forces nailed down their control of the national committee.

First they handed Georgia's whole 17-vote delegation to Taft. Then as if to show they had votes to spare and could afford a hand-out, they awarded Eisenhower a lone contested vote from his home state of Kansas.

That Kansas gesture—which might have been intended as a peace offering—raised the roof in the Eisenhower camp.

The Taft (formerly Republican) National Committee has strained its generosity almost to the breaking point," snorted the usually hard-to-ruffle Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of Massachusetts, Eisenhower's campaign manager.

Improvement work on State Route 752 in Walnut and Harrison townships, Pickaway County, is scheduled to start in the near future. E. L. Sheley, division engineer of the state highway department, announced Thursday.

Contract for the work has been awarded to J. P. Cavett Co., Lockland, O., and will cover a total of 5.22 miles.

Surface treatment will also be used on sections of State Route 361 in Pickaway township. This work will be included in the same contract and will cover 4.61 miles.

Both jobs are tentatively scheduled for completion by Oct. 1, 1952.

With those from Pickaway County will be public employees from Fairfield, Madison, Union, Delaware and Franklin counties.

Local chapters of the Ohio Civil Service Employees Association are sponsoring and financing the affair and hope to make it an annual event.

Underground Gas Storage OK Asked

COLUMBUS, July 3.—(AP)—The Ohio Fuel Gas Co. asked the Federal Power Commission Wednesday for permission to convert six natural gas pools in North Central Ohio to underground storage service.

The company said its supplier, Columbia Gas System, Inc., would finance the $4,880,000 conversion in Ashland, Richland, Holmes, Wayne, Guernsey and Coshocton counties. The estimate 31 billion cubic feet storage of the pools would boost Ohio Fuel's total storage capacity to 143 billion cubic feet.

Ike-Backers Fear Split In GOP In Ohio

TOLEDO, July 3.—(AP)—Twenty-three Ohio Eisenhower organizations Thursday warned Ohio's GOP National Committee and women in Chicago by telegram that steamroller tactics in ironing out delegate disputes would split the party in Ohio.

The telegram to Rep. Clarence Brown and Katharine Kennedy Brown was announced by Gordon Jeffery, co-chairman of the North-western Ohio Eisenhower-for-President Association, after telephone conference of leaders of the state's Eisenhower units.

The message pointed out the Ohio Eisenhower groups have "refrained from name calling" and other tactics which might lead to a party split, and asked on "behalf of thousands of Ohio Eisenhower supporters" that the Ohio committee members vote to seat Eisenhower delegates from Texas and Louisiana.

The communication bore the signatures of Eisenhower leaders in Toledo, Fremont, Bowling Green, Bucyrus, Columbus, Youngstown, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Middletown, East Liverpool, Dayton, Steubenville, Cambridge, Willoughby, Gates Mills, Urbana, Canton, Solon, Shaker Heights, Lorain, Defiance and Findlay.

Truman Is Hinted Senate Candidate

KANSAS CITY, July 3.—(AP)—The possibility that President Truman may be on the Democratic ballot in November appeared to be increasing Thursday.

In this case, however, the evidence indicated that Truman would be listed as a candidate for the United States Senate not for reelection as President.

Influential Missouri office holders believe it is entirely possible that Truman's name may be substituted for that of J. E. Taylor, attorney general of Missouri, on the November ticket for the Senate if Taylor wins the nomination.

Fiscal Agency Probe Hinted

Treasury Security Being Questioned

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(AP)—Chairman McCarran (D-Nev.) said Thursday the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee may investigate possible Communist infiltration of the Treasury Department and other government fiscal agencies.

The group's 18-month probe of the Institute of Pacific Relations, McCarran said, brought out evidence of Communist penetration of the Treasury Department during World War II.

McCarran said he did not know how far it had gone but declared his subcommittee "may go into the situation" unless some other group undertakes an investigation. The internal security unit turned in a report to the Senate Wednesday charging that Communists and pro-Communists took control of the IPR and influenced U. S. policies in the Far East.

The report accused Owen Lattimore of intentionally serving Communist causes, and of lying to the committee on at least five points.

IT RECOMMENDED perjury action against Lattimore, a Far Eastern affairs specialist and Johns Hopkins University professor, and John P. Davies Jr., a State Department official.

Lattimore promptly said the accusations were untrue and the call for perjury action "fantastic." Davies, now deputy director of political affairs for the U. S. at Bonn, said in Germany that he "certainly" denied the perjury allegations.

McCarran said the recommendations to investigate the Treasury and other money-handling agencies grew out of testimony linking the late Harry Dexter White, former undersecretary of the Treasury, and Solomon Adler, another former Treasury official, with a wartime Soviet espionage ring here.

Congress Passes Mine Safety Bill

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(AP)—A bill giving the government new powers to padlock highly dangerous mines has gone to the White House for signature.

The House whipped it through Wednesday by a 185 to 37 standing vote after a vigorous debate, and the Senate approved the House amendments by a voice vote a few hours later without a fight.

The compromise bill, less drastic than the Senate originally proposed, gives federal inspectors authority to close down any mine they find in imminent danger of fire, flood, explosion or disaster from vehicles used by miners.

Slavs Fortifying Hungarian Border

VIENNA, July 3.—(AP)—Austrian border officials say Yugoslavia appears to be throwing up a massive double line of fortifications along her northern border to halt a possible attack from Hungary.

A report from Styria, in Southern Austria, said Austrian mountain lookouts can see the defense system of bunkers and gun emplacements going up along the Drave River.

Businessmen See Few Price Boosts Ahead

Old Supply-Demand Law Expected To Be Real Control

NEW YORK, July 3 — (AP)—Most eastern businessmen believe that watering down of controls should boost few prices and play a trifling part in adding to pay checks.

They hold that government controls already have been superseded in most instances by an older law—the law of supply and demand.

Some jubilant builders think more homes may be started when, and if, mortgage terms are made easier. But the new control law has a safety valve. The President can slap mortgage curbs back on if run-away home building threatens to exhaust materials needed in defense work. And housing credit agencies say Dec. 1 is the earliest any changes in the rules could be made.

Business reaction to the new law, with its fewer teeth, is largely that controls are petering out.

FOOD SUPPLIES, in general, are adequate and most prices have fallen below the ceilings.

Clothing prices are also below ceiling, and most of the textile and apparel industries have already been decontrolled.

Rent controls can be retained, if the local community wants them. And anyway, in spite of controls rents, in general, have gone steadily higher since the war.

Most of the effect of the new law will be concentrated, as in the past, on raw materials—chiefly metals—that are in short supply and therefore allocated to defense industries. But even here, the end of many scarcities is in sight.

"Under direct controls, you can never really lower prices," Gardner Ackley, economic adviser to the Office of Price Stabilization, said at an economic forum of the National Industrial Conference Board.

"You can only hold them or raise them. If any prices are ever to come down, they got to come down by market forces and then be caught before they start back up again too far."

But the chances of prices rising again soon seem slight to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. It says in a study released this week: "Inflationary pressures seem to have receded for the present throughout most of the world. Prices are once again being tested by consumer resistance."

3 New Outdoor Centers Planned

COLUMBUS, July 3 — (AP)—Ohio's Natural Resources Commission has approved preliminary steps toward developing three new outdoor recreational centers.

The commission gave V. W. Flickinger, chief of parks division, permission to prepare architectural sketches and designs for dining and recreational lodges and sleeping cabins at the centers.

They are the 3,400-acre Hueston Woods State Park in Butler and Preble Counties, the 500-acre Punderson Lake Park in Geauga County, and the 4,800-acre Pymatuning Lake State Park in Ashtabula County.

ASTRONOMY professor Dr. William J. Luyten (above), of the University of Minnesota, and Dr. E. F. Carpenter, of Steward Observatory, have announced the discovery of a new star. They said it is in a class known as "white dwarfs" and is the smallest known star in the universe. It is reported to be about one-third the size of the earth.

Toledo Youths Provide Sub Pup For Fala

TOLEDO, July 3 — (AP)—Two Toledo youngsters and their pet dog are furnishing a replacement for the late Franklin D. Roosevelt's famous Scotch terrier, Fala, who died April 5.

Bernard Solomon, 14, and his sister, Susanne, 12, wrote to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, expressing their sympathy as fellow Scotch fanatics after Fala's death. Included in the letter was an offer of one of the pups from a litter expected by their pedigreed pet, Bonnie Lassie.

Two weeks later Bonnie Lassie became the mother of six black pups, described by the children as "perfect replicas" of the late President's well-traveled companion.

Two weeks ago Bernard and Susanne received a letter from Mrs. Roosevelt, indicating her desire to have one of the pups.

The as-yet-unnamed little fellow was shipped Tuesday to the Roosevelt home near Poughkeepsie.

Warning: Reds Make Crackers

COLUMBUS, July 3 — (AP)—The state fire marshal says nine-tenths of all "Chinese" firecrackers are made in Red China.

Even though the retail sale of fireworks is banned in Ohio, some of these 'crackers have made their way into the state, State Fire Marshal Harry Cailan said, and added: "Not only are these 'crackers' dangerous in themselves, there is a possibility of their being sabotaged and they may cause great harm."

New Mousetrap Fully Automatic

NEW YORK — (AP)—A new mousetrap kills by electric shock that cannot be transmitted to humans because of its unique design. The device, invented by A. G. Burns of Farmland, Ind., catches, slays and places the dead rodent's body in a drawer compartment. The drawer is removable for easy cleaning and eliminates handling the mouse. The trap resets itself after each execution within a fraction of a second.

Liberty Bell, Famous Symbol Of U.S. Freedom, Is Now 200

By H. D. CRAWFORD

PHILADELPHIA — The Liberty Bell arrived in Philadelphia from England 200 years ago, in 1752. Americans celebrating Independence Day this year may well feel deep satisfaction that this famed symbol of American liberty still rests in Independence Hall where the Continental Congress adopted the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776, and where Congress sat for four months in the Summer of 1787 drafting the Constitution of the United States.

Independence Day assumes even greater significance in the United States as freedom-loving peoples over the world look to American leadership and example while organized Communism hammers relentlessly to destroy the principles of freedom and individual men and women—the very foundation of western civilization.

Independence Hall and associated buildings on Philadelphia's historic Independence Square are now administered by the National Park Service, whose director in his last annual report referred to them as "the most important group of historic structures in the United States."

The Independence National Historic Park Project now being developed for the American people involves about 20 acres in the old part of Philadelphia. Besides Independence Hall, the more famous structures include Congress Hall, Carpenter's Hall, old City Hall, Christ Church, and various surrounding historic sites and buildings.

ONE OF THESE sites is the area where Benjamin Franklin had his home and print shop. In the cemetery of Christ Church lie seven signers of the Declaration of Independence, including Franklin.

This area of Philadelphia was the seat of the Colonial government during most of the Revolutionary war. After the Constitution was adopted, the federal government first met in New York, but in 1790 it returned to Philadelphia for a decade.

It then met in the new county court building erected near Independence Hall. The building has since been known as Congress Hall.

President George Washington was inaugurated there for his second term. John Adams was also inaugurated there as second President.

Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell are most closely associated with Independence Day. Independence Hall originally was the state house for the Province of Pennsylvania.

Construction of it started in 1732, the year George Washington was born, and continued, with numerous delays, for about 25 years.

Pennsylvania's Provincial Assembly authorized the erection of the tower on the state house in the 1740's. It was "to contain a staircase, with a suitable place therein for hanging a bell."

The bell for the new state house was ordered in 1751 from England. Since that was exactly 50 years after William Penn presented his famed Charter of Privileges, an inscription was placed on the new bell as a memorial to Penn's Privileges. The inscription read: "Proclaim Liberty."

The Liberty Bell reached Philadelphia in 1752, and while being tested it cracked. Two Philadelphia workmen recast the bell. Its tone was still far from satisfactory. They recast it again in 1753 from the original metal. This is the bell you see today.

THE LIBERTY Bell served for many years as the official bell of the Pennsylvania State House. It rang to herald meetings of the Assembly and courts of justice.

In 1777 the British army occupied Philadelphia, and Pennsylvanians hid the Liberty Bell for nearly a year at Allentown.

Following the Revolution, the Liberty Bell tolled at deaths of the nation's leaders. In 1835 it cracked—the crack you see today when you visit Independence Hall. It supposedly cracked while tolling the death of Chief Justice John Marshall.

Independence Hall became a museum in 1802 for paintings of the noted artist, Charles Willson Peale. The city of Philadelphia purchased Independence Hall in 1818. When Peale died in 1826, Philadelphia also acquired his paintings. Many of these portraits of Revolutionary heroes are still to be seen in Independence Hall.

Independence Hall National Historic Park is one of the best examples in the nation of co-operation of national, state and city governments to acquire historic property for preserving sites and buildings where great men of the past worked, thought, debated, and made decisions that forged the United States of America and its constitutional government.

Independence Day perpetuates these principles and commemorates the stirring events that gave birth to the Declaration of Independence.

AUTOS, THEN AND NOW

AT ABOUT the moment that James Melton, tenor, was auctioning off some of his antique automobiles at his estate in Norwalk, Conn., word came from Detroit that in less than the first six months of 1952 the automobile industry had sent its two millionth passenger car off the assembly line.

The cars Melton disposed of from his collection were 23 surplus or duplicate vehicles, leaving him 45 in cherished reserve. The oldest cars sold dated from 1900, the newest from 1918. There was an elegance and spacious comfort about earlier cars that is not duplicated, for some tastes, in modern, streamlined designs.

Then the automobile became a means of mass transportation, which changed the social mores, as well as the aspect of cities and the face of the American landscape. As cars became cheaper, demand and production rose. Production in the first half of 1951 reached almost 3 million passenger cars.

The goal for the first half of 1952 was set somewhat lower, at 2.25 million because of defense needs and other circumstances. The steel strike is halting some automobile factories and slowing down others. But in spite of all adverse factors, American automobile production remains one of the industrial wonders of the world and one of the basic factors in the strength of the American economy, in war or peace.

MAKE RUSSIA A DESERT?

BASIL L. WALTERS, executive editor of a chain of newspapers, has just returned from a swing through Europe, and, in contrast with others who have made the same trip, seems to be less concerned over the possibility that Russia is about to stage an offensive against the United States.

Walters offers another plan of attack on Russia. It is known that rain in Russia comes from the Atlantic. If clouds from that direction could be seeded and robbed of their moisture Russia would be a desert in five years.

There are many problems in America that are difficult of solution. But frequently it seems that in Washington, D.C., the problem of getting reelected has been placed at the top of the list.

These Days

The birthday of a nation can become matter of routine, and our Fourth of July has, to an almost unwholesome degree, joined those festivals, not of obligation but of habit. Because our birthday occurs during the heat of Summer, many use the holiday for outings and long drives. They forget to fly the flag; they fail to tell their children the meaning of the Fourth.

To Americans, this day ought to be a crowning demonstration of love of country, of respect for its institutions, of faith in its future. It is the day when signatures were added to the Declaration of Independence and a new nation proclaimed to the world — our nation.

In this era, the Fourth of July reaches the stature of an ideal, the ideal of nationalism. For we are being told that the United States, having with unbelievable labor, of mind and sinew, attained a strength and position unequaled among nations, should subordinate itself to a futile internationalism which brings no strength to its allies and only weakness to itself. This country was built as a nation whose people are deeply, profoundly patriotic. It can die when that patriotism is diffused into a thin, amorphous internationalism.

It is a tragedy that when this nation has achieved so high a stature, it should be infiltrated by concepts which sap its strength. Our lack of defenses against such concepts is a product of our goodness as a people of the charity and justice which all Americans imbibe with their mother's milk. It is the accentuation of our sense of fair play, of the religious concept of the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God. Some Americans strongly and sincerely feel that we cannot take advantage of our wealth and strength and position; that we should share with those who have lost their advantages in war or who never had them.

This attitude is understandable and, from a humanitarian standpoint, laudable. Yet, we do live in peculiar times, when even goodness of intention and execution are not recognized or appreciated. We are at war. Our enemy is implacable and deceitful and uses means to attain his ends as never before were employed in human history. His method of warfare is such that even in a period when there is no shooting, he conducts a war with unorthodox weapons.

Soviet Russia has suffused the world with the poison gases of fear and hate and has succeeded in so twisting the minds of men that even those whom we have rescued from defeat and disaster turn upon us as though our charities were wicked and our friendship seeds of death. This has been a weapon of war against us and we have yet been unable to devise counter-weapons to lessen its effectiveness.

Difficulty In Swallowing Is Sign Of "Food Pipe" Trouble

By HERMAN H. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A PERSON who finds it hard or painful to swallow will usually find it necessary to visit his doctor, since he will have difficulty in eating. Unfortunately, the first stages of this condition may not annoy him too much, so he will delay seeing the doctor at the very time when it would be easiest to cure him.

Difficulty in swallowing is the commonest sign of some disorder in the tube connecting the throat with the stomach. The medical name for this "food pipe" is the esophagus.

Many Causes

Many different disorders can cause this trouble. Sometimes a tumor of the esophagus can block off its passage and prevent normal digestion. Usually, in tumors, the process is slow, so that first the person is unable to take soft foods, and finally cannot even drink liquids.

Another condition that often interferes with swallowing is known as a diverticulum of the esophagus. This is an extra pouch of the tube, which collects food and prevents normal digestion. An ulcer of the esophagus is another possible complication.

Pressure on Tube

Sometimes, conditions outside the esophagus may cause serious difficulty in swallowing, by putting pressure on the tube from without. A common example is a tumor in the chest cavity. Tuberculosis may sometimes cause the same difficulty, or again, tumors of the lung and glands around the esophagus may be the cause.

When certain blood vessels of the neck and chest have abnormal positions, they, too, can press on the esophagus and make swallowing difficult. This condition, known as malposition, is not infrequently seen.

Early Examination

Whenever you have real difficulty in swallowing, you should have your doctor investigate as soon as possible, so that whatever the cause, it may be corrected before a disease has progressed too far.

Usually, the method of examining the esophagus is with X-rays. A thick substance containing barium is first taken by mouth and, if the esophagus is obstructed at any point, the barium will reveal it.

Most trouble in swallowing, due to a disease of the esophagus or the organs surrounding it, can be corrected if discovered early enough.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. H.: What is Ludwig's angina? Answer: Ludwig's angina is a severe type of infection of the roof of the mouth. In this condition there is usually fever, swelling, and redness and pain of the lower jaw and the area underneath the chin.

Ludwig's angina may be due to a number of different types of germs, such as the streptococcus or staphylococcus. It may follow an infection of the teeth, injury to the mouth, or infection of the gums.

Treatment depends upon the cause and should be given under the direction of a doctor.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

NORRIS said: "Gram was quite interested in this affair, Dad. Saw the excitement. Sent me out for news, in fact, and I met Mr. Gamadge at the scene of the crime. I think he has a kind of a cult for her."

"I have," said Gamadge. "So we thought," continued Nordhall, "that she might just possibly have seen somebody we're interested in coming or going; as we need evidence of any kind whatsoever, hers would be."

"Oh," Orday pondered. "Well, it's quite possible. Do you want to ask her? She's a very old lady, and she couldn't by any means appear in court, you know, hang around as a witness. That would be out of the question."

"Never thought of such a thing. A sworn statement," said Nordhall. "The D. A.'s office would take care of it. But we'd like to see her ourselves, if it is convenient. And without any kind of preparation, if you understand what I mean."

Orday thought this over. Then he looked at his son and smiled. "Think she'd enjoy it?"

"Very much," said Norris. "All right, come along. You'll permit us to be present, I hope?" He rose, still smiling, and they all rose.

"More witnesses, the better we like it," said Gamadge. "Five men, all of them tall and four of them large, went up two flights of stairs in single file. "Old lady climb these?" panted Nordhall.

Orday looked over his shoulder at him. "Oh yes; three times a day. Born to it." They arrived at the third floor landing. Orday went along to a front room, looked in, and said: "Some gentlemen to see you, Mother, business."

A clear old voice said: "Bring them in, dear, bring them in."

They went in to a big cheerful bedroom, where an old lady sat in a window with a big dog at her feet. The dog raised his head, stared, and then slowly laid his muzzle down again on his paws. The old lady raised her head, looked at the invading hordes with surprise, and adjusted her spectacles. Her face had a slightly aquiline cast, and her features were firm but benign.

"I hope there are chairs," she said.

Norris performed the introductions. When he came to Gamadge Copyright, 1951, by she smiled. "I've been hoping to meet you," she said, "and your wife—and your guest."

"Paying guest, I assure you."

Everybody sat down except Orday Senior, who said he would stay at the door to keep the gate. "Servants always popping in to see how Mother's getting on."

Nordhall, opposite Mrs. Orday, asked her kindly to throw her mind back as far as Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Orday obediently assumed a thoughtful look.

"There was some trouble around the corner," he reminded her. "A little before half-past six. You noticed the excitement, I understand; from your window here. Now would you have noticed any comings and goings to and from the Austen house in the preceding three-quarters of an hour? Say between a quarter to six and the time the crowd began to gather?"

Mrs. Orday said amiably: "I don't keep looking out of the window all the time, you know. I glance out now and then."

"Certainly, we understand that," said Nordhall.

"I happened to glance out some little time after six o'clock, and I saw this Mr. Gamadge come down the steps with the Miss Austen who lives there with her brothers."

"Gram," said Norris, "you're 'way behind the times. Haven't you taken a grander out all this afternoon?"

"If anything was going on, Norris, you might have told me."

"Dad thought it was too rugged for you."

Nordhall brought the conversation back to where it had been broken off. "But earlier, Mrs. Orday? Less than half an hour earlier?"

"I didn't happen to look earlier. No."

Nordhall sat back, disconsolately dragging his hands along his thighs. "Well," he said, "I suppose it was too much to expect."

"I'm very sorry to disappoint you, Lieutenant."

"But perhaps you went on looking after Mr. Gamadge and Miss Austen passed — with the little dog?" He sat forward again. "See anybody go back in?"

"Yes, I saw him going up the steps soon after Mr. Gamadge and his sister and the little dog went by. I was looking after them, and then I looked back and saw him go up the steps."

"Saw who, ma'am?" Nordhall was again gripping his knees.

"Mr. Austen. The lame man."

Copyright, 1951, by Elizabeth Daly. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Nordhall's expression was so blank, the silence in the room so intense, that she felt a need to apologize: "I've said the wrong thing? I can't help it. Even if he hadn't been helping himself up by the railing, I know that coat and hat."

Nordhall and Gamadge, eyeing each other, suddenly smiled; Ryder burst into uncontrollable laughter, and slapped his knees. Mrs. Orday, surprised, raised her eyebrows at him, and he stiffened to official gravity.

"Excuse us, Mrs. Orday," said Nordhall, getting hold of himself. "No way to behave, it's no laughing matter. But you gave us a surprise. We seem to be having a little trouble this afternoon with places and times. The lame man, as you call him, and you certainly are behind the times, was still in the house—Mr. Gamadge had left him up on the third floor, and he couldn't have come out until after Gamadge and Miss Austen did, and so he couldn't have made it. Not even with his brace on."

"Brace off?"

"And he won't like it when he hears that Jerome Austen borrowed his limp and his outdoor things to commit a murder in."

Mrs. Orday replaced her spectacles to gaze at him.

Nordhall turned to Gamadge: "He didn't worry about Norah seeing him, he forgot that the groceries come late on Saturday afternoon. Ran down those basement stairs and out the gate. But he wasn't taking any chances outdoors. So far as he knew, nobody was ever going to connect any of the Austens with this murder; but he might be noticed around the entrance to that service alley down the street, and—well, you see the beauty of it. No lame man would think of attempting a murder like that; he wouldn't risk it—not the kind of lame man that one push could shove off balance or even off his feet."

"Dark evening," said Gamadge. "And with that soft hat turned down, and his collar up—and they were much of a height, and the same coloring. Bayles implied, you remember, that a casual description would fit either him or Gray Austen; it might fit him and Gray Austen's brother. I suppose, if you didn't look too closely, I saw them together; I think Jerome could get away with it in the circumstances. In fact, so far as Mrs. Orday was concerned, he did."

news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, July 3—President Truman may have "mouse-trapped" the overconfident Republicans in the closing days of the 82d session of Congress in the same way that he outsmarted them on the farm storage issue in 1948.

The two questions with which Truman has played practical, poker politics on the eve of the national conventions are capable of setting off emotional explosions in a presidential election year. They concern the steel strike and labor-management relations in general, and the equally excitable subjects of price controls, inflation and the cost of living.

He has manipulated these problems in such a manner that he may be able to convince millions of workers and consumers—again—that the Republicans and Southern Democrats on Capitol Hill sold them down the river. As he frequently recalls with pride amounting to arrogance, "I licked that combination once, and I can do it again!"

RESPONSIBLE — This conservative coalition on the House side voted for an immediate end of all economic controls. Although the final bill extends them for 10 months, it is far weaker than the original White House program.

The legislators advanced strong arguments for a free market. Inventories of almost all goods are high and not moving fast. Prices in many lines are far below ceilings. Under Truman prodding, the Federal Reserve has removed most curbs on credit in an attempt to encourage buying and an active market.

It may be that this loosening of controls will not touch off a sharp and rapid price rise. Many economists maintain that people are not buying for the simple reason that, after taxes, they just haven't got the money.

But if the cost of living climbs upward between now and election — it is at an all-time peak already — Truman's hand-picked Democratic nominee will have an excellent, pocketbook argument against a Bob or Ike ticket. The opposition will be wide open to charges that it was responsible for hiking the cost of everything from mink coats to doughnuts.

RESTRICTIONS — The "mouse-trapping" factor figures in this politico-economic struggle because Truman himself inspired the general movement for easier money and credit. His "whistle stop" demands for controls to safeguard consumers and workers conceal his responsibility for lighting an inflationary green light.

While the Federal Reserve was considering the delicate and complex question of easing restrictions on consumer credit, Truman suddenly terminated the voluntary system under which states, cities and counties had agreed not to issue new bonds except for emergency projects.

Once the White House lifted this lid, federal bankers found it impossible to resist demands for an across-the-board elimination of all restrictions. When Truman broke ranks, everybody insisted on the right to follow him.

Removal of restrictions on household appliances — refrigerators, washing machines, furniture, radios, television sets—presented no great difficulty, for they were plentiful. But the Reserve felt that limited restrictions should be retained on automobiles, in view of the large amount of credit figuring in their purchase.

REPEAL — The "big three"—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—would have been satisfied with requirements for a solid down payment and 18 months for liquidation. But the independent firms insisted on outright repeal, arguing that credit curbs alone were responsible for smaller sales of their makes. Partly to prove they were wrong, the Reserve wiped out Regulation W completely.

Truman's economic advisers rejoiced at this move. An active apostle of the emasculated Truman control legislation, Senator Blair Moody of Michigan, threw his weight into the scales for cheap car credit. He will need campaign funds and votes to win re-election next November in the motor-car state.

As frequently noted here, Truman's general management of federal finances has been wholly inflationary. Recent bond issues have been sold and priced in such a way that they can feed billions into business, financial and speculative channels at any time. He has snubbed conservative advisers.

JUSTIFICATION — In eliminating price controls, House members cited Truman's policies as precedent and justification. But there is a vast difference between his technique and Capitol Hill's handling of the question.

Truman's contribution has been so indirect and technical—few economists understand the operation of price factors, and fewer bankers are monetary experts—that it will be almost impossible for the opposition to explain or capitalize on it. But the coalition's vote for wiping out price safeguards in the House, and the final weakening of the White House program, can be exploited by the most simple-minded politicians and ghost-writers.

PINCH — The steel strike has started to pinch so many segments of the economy, causing unemployment and hardships, that Truman must act soon. His only unexhausted remedy is use of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The president's juggling of this question has been Machiavellian, politically. He has jockeyed Congress into the position of forcing him to use his enemies' statute. Meanwhile, he has almost insured its failure by statements inviting the strikers not to obey an injunction. He hopes thereby to discredit the act and its author, making himself out a hero and Senator Taft a villain.

It may not be statesmanship, but it may be smart, inside politics. It will enable Truman to repeat his 1948 warnings that any "farmer or workman" (or consumer, the 1952 addendum) who votes against the Fair Deal will be guilty of rank ingratitude."

Color Video Long Way Off, Experts Say

Predictions Range From 2 To 5 Years, Industry Advises

NEW YORK, July 3.—What's the outlook for color television in your home?

It may be closer than it has been, but it's still a long way off.

Probabilities are that if you have a new black and white set now, or are about to buy one, you'll be ready to trade it in or junk it before regular color telecasts are on the air or sets on the market.

Predictions of industry officials on color range from "at least two years" to "five years or more."

Meanwhile, it's a certainty the Federal Communications Commission will be asked to reconsider the method of color telecasting to be used, with a view to adopting different standards from those now in effect.

The action of the National Production Authority recently in relaxing its ban on the manufacture of color TV sets and equipment created a flurry of interest, but its effects on color for the home will be practically nil.

IT WILL MAKE it possible for industrial color and theater color TV, both of which use closed circuits and do not go out over the air, to go ahead although the pace will be slow in these fields.

The NPA order does make it possible for manufacturers to turn out color TV sets for the home if it does not interfere with defense production, but—

There will be no regular color telecasts on the air, so it would be pointless for a manufacturer to make color TV sets.

The Columbia Broadcasting System, whose color method was adopted by the FCC as the national standard, had the only regular color telecasts on the air when the ban on color set production was imposed last fall.

Its subsidiary, CBS Columbia Inc., had the only color sets on the market, and had sold only a few of them.

As to what happens now, CBS says: "We do not believe that the NPA order relating to color television receivers will affect our present operations or our plans for the future."

"We are not justified in expending at this time further manufacturing and broadcasting resources in this effort," CBS added, "unless it appears that other substantial segments in the industry are prepared to go forward."

A heavy majority of set makers opposed FCC adoption of the CBS color method, contending it was not the best system available and that it would not be accepted by the public. Since the latest NPA action, virtually all have reported that defense demands on their facilities are so heavy they will be unable to make color sets of any kind for the duration of the rearmament program.

So What If Worm Turns? Wife There Ready To Tromple Him

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK, July 3.—Some American husbands threaten their wives darkly:

"But remember—even a worm can turn."

Other, more practical men, know this is idle nonsense. What can a worm do even if he does turn? Nothing. There have been cases of rabbits biting bulldogs, but whoever heard of a worm busting a robin in the back?

A group of sensible husbands, realizing a turning worm gets nowhere but does thereby gain some exercise, have banded together in a kind of Worm-of-the-Month club.

The club, national in scope, is called "The Worms Turnverein," and its motto is, "I am the master of my soul, subject to my wife's control." The club crest is a small worm squirming backward and forward at the same time without progress under a woman's high heel.

The purpose of the organization, as outlined in its membership application, is "to protest unsuccessfully against woman's inhumanity to man, against wives enslavement of husbands."

To be admitted a husband must answer in the negative when asked, "Are you happy?" The membership committee consists of radio-casters Gabriel Heatter and Lawrence E. Spivak, and A. Frank Katzentine, a Miami attorney.

Most husbands probably would find themselves eligible to join these joyous souls, who meet yearly in Miami Beach in a session known as "the Diet of Worms."

Here are a few of the rules and regulations: "Any member who wins an important and final victory over his wife in anything is automatically expelled."

"Members are expected to adhere strictly to an unpleasant diet prepared by their wives in the so-called interest of their health. Any member who more than once a week is fed a meal like mother-used-to-cook will be put on probation."

"Any member who at any time is found to have all his buttons on all his shirts, and socks without holes shall be automatically expelled.

"Any member who isn't dragged to some useless function under useless protest at least once a week shall be suspended for 30 days."

"Any member whose wife fails to say at least once a week that the attentive eye he casts at a pretty young thing is a sign of on-rushing senility will be placed on permanent probation."

"Any member whose wife packs his bag for a trip he takes alone will be unanimously expelled."

"Any member whose wife does not make exorbitant financial demands on him regularly shall be put on two weeks' probation."

"Expelled members can be taken back into the fold only after long pleading and after an inspection by the Diet of Worms in organized session. Such inspection must reveal (A) a general deterioration in appearance, and (B) a thoroughly cowed demeanor."

So far, I haven't mailed in my own application to become one of "The Worms Turnverein." I have a secret suspicion the club was instigated by a smart wife.

No common sense wife objects if her worm turns—just so he understands fully that it will get him nowhere.

Bosses Criticize High School Grads

NEW YORK, July 3.—The trouble with recent high school graduates employed by its member firms, says the Commerce and Industry Association of New York, is that their spelling is bad, their handwriting illegible, their arithmetic unreliable and they expect too much pay and too rapid advancement.

The survey was based on questionnaires filled in by executives of 165 firms about the aptitudes and job qualifications of 33,234 employees hired since 1947 with high school educations.

Weekly Food Review

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 3.—Many food markets trimmed retail prices of small turkeys, hams and hot-weather fruits this week and stressed these items as specials for shoppers preparing for the long Fourth of July weekend.

Turkeys were marked down as much as 10 cents a pound in some places. Most being offered were the meaty Beltsville whites of between five and nine pounds, and supplies were reported liberal.

Hams—smoked, cooked or canned—were off as much as six cents a pound and were being heavily promoted as a picnic item.

Prices of most other meats moved irregularly with no general trend noted, either up or down, and few marked changes. Frying chickens, for example, which often are reduced for holiday weekends, were higher in some areas, off in others.

The Agriculture Department reported that salmon, an Independence Day favorite for many traditionalists in past years, was in fair supply, both fresh and frozen, but at rather high prices. Several other types of fish were rated as more reasonable, depending on market location.

TOP GRADE eggs were up in most places, rising two to as much as eight cents a dozen.

Cherries, blueberries, raspberries, watermelons, peaches and apricots topped the list of lower-priced summer fruits this week. Honeydew melons and peaches were still relatively high in comparison with the others whose seasons were farther along. Lemons, grapes and plums advanced.

Cabbage, best quality celery and lettuce were up slightly. Both lettuce and tomatoes continued to be offered in a wide range of quality and price. Asparagus, nearing the end of its season, was lower, along with parsley, peppers and best snap beans. Potatoes generally were about unchanged.

In the Time of the Judges

JEHOVAH APPOINTED WISE MEN TO AID HIS PEOPLE

Scripture—Judges 1:1-3:6; 21:25.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

BEGINNING a new series of lessons today, we go back to the Old Testament to see how in those times (possibly 1375-1095 B. C.) the people disobeyed God's laws of morality and their allegiance to him, even as they did in the time of Jesus and even are doing today.

It seems so easy for man to sin, to forget God's goodness and all He has done for him, and to slip into evil ways. If he could only realize how much happier he would be—and the world with him—if he obeyed the laws of morality and followed the Master's teaching.

Joshua had died, the man who had led the Israelites after Moses' death, and had conquered the people of the land Jehovah had promised them. He had made the walls of Jericho to fall; and had ordered the sun and moon to stand still to give this people a victory over their enemies.

Who would take the place of gone, the next that "knew not Jehovah, nor yet the work which He had wrought for Israel, did that which was evil in the sight of Jehovah, and served Baalim."

Jehovah's anger was kindled against His people, "and He sold them into the hands of their enemies round about, so that they could not any longer stand before their enemies."

Israel was "sore distressed," and Jehovah, relenting, "raised up judges, who saved them out of the land of those that despoiled them."

"And when Jehovah raised them up judges, then Jehovah was with the judge, and saved them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge: for it repented Jehovah because of their groaning, by reason of them that oppressed them and vexed them."

An angel of the Lord had warned them that if they obeyed not Jehovah and did not drive out the inhabitants of the land they had conquered, The Lord

MEMORY VERSE

"Blessed is the nation whose God is Jehovah."—Psalm 33:12.

this great leader? Jehovah appointed judges, saying, "Jehovah shall go up; behold I have delivered the land into his hand."

Judah asked his brother, Simeon, to go with him, promising him that if he would "come up with me in my lot, that we may fight against the Canaanites; and I likewise will go with thee into thy lot." Simeon did as his brother wished.

The first part of the book of Judges tells how the Israelites divided up the land, conquering one section after another and assigning their land to this one and that. Caleb, one of the agents who was sent out to spy the land for his people, offered to give his daughter, Achish, to whoever would conquer the land he had chosen. His younger brother, Othniel, won the girl, and the book tells how she went to her father later and asked for his blessing. He had given her a south land and now she wanted springs of water. He gave them to her.

During Joshua's life the people faithfully served Jehovah. So did they during the life of the elders who had seen the wondrous works of Jehovah in their behalf, in leading the people out of the land of Egypt, protecting them in their wanderings in the wilderness, and helping them to conquer the promised land.

When all that generation had would not break His covenant with His people, but He would make these people "as thorns in your sides, and their gods shall be a snare unto you."

After the death of the judges, the people became more corrupt than ever. They intermarried with the heathen people of the lands, forsook Jehovah, and freely worshipped these pagan gods.

"And the anger of the Lord was hot against Israel; and He said, Because that this people hath transgressed my covenant which I commanded their fathers, and have not hearkened unto My voice:

"I also will not henceforth drive out any from before them of the nations which Joshua left when he died:

"That through them I may prove Israel, whether they will keep the way of the Lord to walk therein, as their fathers did keep it, or not."

"In those days there was no king in Israel: every man did that which was right in his own eyes."

If each man did what was right, there would be no need for police, the FBI, and similar agencies to detect and bring offenders to punishment. The Book of Judges says that in spite of what the judges appointed by Jehovah did for the people, they largely disregarded their control and sank lower and lower in sin.

Cincinnati Blows Another Game

CINCINNATI, July 3 — The Cincinnati Reds blew another ball game Wednesday night by letting their foes get out of hand when there were two out and no one on base.

Last Sunday Chicago scored seven runs after two were out in the ninth to lick the Cincinnati Reds. At St. Louis, Herman Wehmeier, coming through with one of his rare tight pitching performances, hurried on even terms with Harry Brecheen until two were out in the eighth and then three quick runs brought the Cards a 3 to 0 victory.

Subsidization Hit Anew By Judge

NEW YORK, July 3 — General Sessions Judge Saul Streit Wednesday urged that subsidization of athletes be made a criminal offense in all states as he sentenced 11 admitted basketball fixers.

A caustic critic of high-powered collegiate sports, Judge Streit once again attacked the whole structure of "commercialized college" sports. One of the fixers was a former Long Island University captain. Another was a prosperous Altoona, Pa., shoe manufacturer and real estate operator.

Sokolsky's These Days

Only recently we witnessed the consequences of this new method of warfare in the British complaints against our beginning to fight in Korea in a soldierly manner so as to bring that war to a close. True, Churchill and Eden stood by the United States, which is even now fighting their war in Korea—their war because involved ultimately are Hongkong and Singapore—but that such a debate should have occurred in Parliament proves the success of the Russian propaganda of fear and hate.

It is because we are at war that internationalism, that limited sovereignty, that the lessening and, in some respects, the loss of freedom of action can reach devastating proportions. We need to be Americans always and to decide our policies on the basis of what is beneficial for the United States. Only by such a measuring rod can we avoid the diffusion of purpose and the confusion of decision which, since 1945, has plagued us and lessened the effectiveness of our aid to our allies.

This, then, it seems to me, is the lesson of the Fourth of July, 1952. The Fathers of this country were extraordinarily wise men who conceived a government in freedom under God. They made a point that separation of one people from another required justification and the Declaration of Independence is a document of explanation and justification.

It is a landmark in man's march toward liberty—personal, individual, human liberty.

But they did not base liberty upon the whim or will of man. They nestled liberty in the bosom of God.

Postoffice Uses Plain Common Sense For Efficiency

Official Says Philosophy Also Figures

There's a good deal of human philosophy and plain every-day common sense in the operation of a postoffice.

You have it on the word of Leon Van Vliet, assistant postmaster at the Circleville postoffice and a firm believer in the theory that even top efficiency has to have some compromises.

Describing the work of the local postoffice recently, and the problems that come and go, he explained many situations in which the postal service—because of a shortage of help or other factors beyond immediate remedy—is forced to adjust its operations to the best possible choice.

There's philosophy in his belief that the defense-spurred boom will eventually fade and allow working and operating conditions to return to normal. And, there has to be common sense—with a grin on the side—when residents of Circleville send letters to Ashville by airmail!

VAN VLIET, WHO lives at 157 West High street and joined the postal service here 29 years ago, also takes a philosophical view on the general public's carelessness in wrapping and addressing mail.

"There's not much you can do about it," he said in reference to scrawled writing and packages wrapped as though especially designed to fall apart. "Folks just keep doing it, and while it causes us plenty of trouble—possibly our No. 1 problem—we feel it's just something we have to put up with, and pray it doesn't happen too often."

The assistant postmaster stressed that the postal service, in these years of a lean budget, can no longer afford to give special attention and research when a letter, circular or package comes in without adequate address, or one written so that even the most experienced man on the staff can't read it.

Hopeless mail of that variety is turned over to special departments at Cincinnati. But before it goes, there's one last effort to salvage some of the "mysteries" in the postoffice's "dead box."

Demonstrating the spirit that guides work at the city postoffice, Postmaster A. Hulse Hays usually leads in this "one last try" at the garbled addresses.

Although it's not included in requirements for his position, the postmaster personally tries his hand at solving some of the "dead" mail before it's sent to Cincinnati.

THE CITY postoffice employs 25 workers and maintains one delivery service over five routes.

Van Vliet said a sixth route is needed to establish a better balance between the amount of help available and the fast changing volume of incoming and outgoing mail.

There are many periods in which a heavier flow of mail can be expected and plans made accordingly. Van Vliet pointed out, such as first-of-the-month bills and around the holidays—but almost any day can bring a surprise.

"There's no apparent reason for the sudden ebb and flow of the daily mail," the official said. "It just happens, and causes us no end of trouble."

Reflecting the common sense used in policy at the postoffice, Van Vliet explained that distribution schedules have to be made flexible.

"We feel we're doing our patron a service," he said, "by giving them the latest mail a little later in the day—when that seems feasible—instead of keeping an iron-clad schedule and make them wait until tomorrow to get their letter."

Like many other businesses, the postal service is handicapped by its wage scales when placed alongside the wages in booming defense industries.

"But these days will pass," Van Vliet predicted, "and we'll come again to the years when men will be glad to get a good, secure postal position."

THE PUBLIC however, consistently demands high class service and often fails to understand rules established in their own interests.

"Many times they come to the parcel post window and howl because the clerk insists upon regulations," Van Vliet laughed. "The don't seem to realize that the clerk, first of all, is the one responsible for the package. And they also fail to see that he's trying to have the package mailed so that it's sure to arrive on time and in one piece."

Van Vliet said there's very little delay in delivery of first class mail in Circleville. "But if an outgoing letter is important," he advised, "it should be brought to the postoffice for mailing."

He explained the pickup hours on the corner mail boxes are calculated for maximum efficiency, but that the postoffice always has to make the best of unexpected difficulties.

"We certainly can't promise that all the pickups at all the boxes are made on the dot," he warned. "It would be a physical impossibility."

As for the air mail letter that sometimes appears in the file for Ashville, Van Vliet said it's nothing unusual.

"It's just something that calls for common sense," he said. "If we know an air mail letter can make better time by rail to some distant city, naturally we disregard the air mail and send by rail."

ALL AIR MAIL out of Circleville gets aboard the plane for its first lap at Port Columbus field.

The individual mailman came in for special discussion these days with the mercury up in the 90's. Carriers working out of Circleville postoffice walk up to nine miles a day on their rounds. A few do the limit while most probably average seven miles per day—lugging a pack with them while the hot sun laughs and laughs.

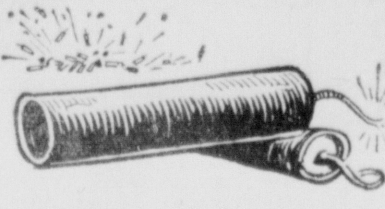

And as if the hot weather isn't enough to send the mailman home talking to himself, Van Vliet pointed out that mean dogs are still a threat to the postal carrier at many homes.

"We've had several men bitten by dogs," he said, "but there's always a strange point about all those dog cases."

"The owner of the dog always claims the mailman was at fault. They never admit their dog bites. They insist the mailman took time out to stir up the animal."

Van Vliet didn't say so, but almost any day now it seems likely the argument will go all the way. And they'll be insisting the mailman tried to bite the dog!

Ohio Variety Robin Amazes Californians

LONG BEACH, Calif., July 3—(P)—Ohio robins eat the darndest things.

The California variety thrives on worms, bugs and as such, but Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Thomas brought one from Columbus, O., that eats spaghetti, bacon, peas, green beans, diluted milk, bread or bologna.

Last month they found a naked little baby robin on their front lawn and adopted it with the name of George or Georgette—whichever nature found fitting. Came time for vacation trip, the bird came along. Instead of feeding it a special robin diet, the Thomases decided he could jolly well eat what they do. And to date the bird has thrived on it.

The robin drooped from the heat on the trip through the Midwest so Thomas augmented the regular diet with a few drops of whisky and water. George—or Georgette—perked right up.
